My Background

An ambitious and multi-skilled professional who brings diverse experience and a determined mindset

to any project

My online T-shirt brand "LB17" – comprising my initials and the number 17 – promotes a philosophy of promotes a philosophy of unwavering positivity, inspiration and self-belief. I believe these are key fundamentals to success. The 17 in the brand derives from my roots in football, which I play at semi-professional level and has always been a means for me to push boundaries. From a young age, 17 was my lucky number and it's of choice in the game.

In addition, I am self-employed as a Private Tutor, where I offer lessons in Maths and English up to KS3 level, and in German language up to all levels (I speak German fluently).

Further areas of expertise include fitness, where I have written two books on the subject, post content on social media and offer coaching sessions. I am also working towards obtaining a professional Developer.

Before starting my professional career, I studied French and German at University. I am fully fluent in German, having worked in a variety of German-speaking roles over the years.

My USP is my ability to absorb information quickly mixed with a desire to always learn more and be the best version of myself.
